The External Research Staff of the Dept of STATE has requested our cooperation in compiling data on research contracts for the purpose of its inclusion in a government-wide inventory of all research on foreign areas under contract.

We are interested in all contracts negotiated by the USOMs dealing with research. Research contracts are defined as:

1. Contracts requiring surveys or studies on various aspects of the economy, public administration, education, cultural patterns, etc., the social sciences in general.
 - a) geological reconnaissance and/or aerial mapping
 - b) preparation of guidebooks or handbooks
2. Although an operational task may eventually be planned as a result of these surveys or studies, the important criterion is that the contract specifically calls for a survey or study, and that a full report of the survey or study is a requisite for fulfillment of the contract.
3. Report any contracts about which you may be in doubt.

The following is the information to be abstracted from each contract deemed pertinent:

- 1) Name and address of contractor
- 2) Initiation date of contract

Subject: Security clause in contracts.

The General Counsel, Mr. Morris Wolf, has sent me a form of security clause for inclusion in contracts, as required by Foreign Operations Administration Manual, Chapter No. 6, Order No. 611.12, issued September 22, 1953, on the subject Security Clearances for Contractors and Contract Personnel which, he says, "we are using in practically every case".

This is the clause:

"S. Personnel. (1) Contractor agrees within 30 days after the execution hereof to furnish to FOA the name and necessary identifying information with respect to the officers (if Contractor is a corporation), or the principals (if Contractor is a partnership), or the individual (if Contractor is a sole trader), and, if requested by FOA, to submit biographical information on any of the individuals now or hereafter employed in the performance of this contract; provided that in respect ^t ~~of~~ personnel to be sent overseas for work on this contract, Contractor shall obtain prior approval from FOA as to security. Contractor further agrees, at the written request of FOA, to terminate the employment on this contract of any individual or individuals if FOA is of the opinion that, for security or other reasons, such termination is required.

(2) Before personnel are employed for or assigned to work on this contract, the Contractor shall submit to FOA such information regarding past earnings of such personnel as may reasonably be requested by FOA and shall obtain FOA approval of salary and time charges in respect ^t ~~of~~ such personnel."

In view of this instruction, the language which I suggested in my letter of January 4, 1954 should be disregarded.

- As indicated in the telegram under reference, it is believed that there can be a considerable expansion in the number and scope of contracts between American universities and foreign universities, institutes or governmental departments. Several different types of contract are already in operation, and differing conditions in different countries will probably continue to necessitate tailoring contracts to fit individual circumstances. An illustrative or sample contract is being airpouched.
- The broad or comprehensive type of contract, which is, in general, to be preferred, involves the sending overseas of faculty members of an American University, the training in this country of foreign nationals connected with the same project, and the provision, where necessary, of books, supplies and equipment of the type and quantity best able to achieve the desired objectives. The faculty members, while abroad, should not be used primarily as teachers, but as technicians working cooperatively with technicians of the host country in development of improved curricula, teaching methods and instructional materials, and in research and (especially in agriculture) extension. The various fields in which the universities may render appropriate assistance are indicated in the attached list of contracts already in operation, or under negotiations. In addition to the contracts listed there are numerous other contracts calling for training of foreign nationals in this country, or the sending of educators abroad for limited objectives, or specific research projects to be performed mostly in this country.
